

FAST FACTS

What will Change?

Anaheim's current At-Large electoral system will, for the first time, change to a By-District system made up of six districts. Council Members will be required to live in the district where they seek election and will only be elected by the residents of that district. The number of Council Members will increase from four to six (one from each district) plus the Mayor. The Mayor will continue to be elected by the entire City (At-Large). On November 4, 2014, Anaheim voters changed the At-Large system to a By-District system.

Who Determines the Boundaries of the City Council Districts?

The City is seeking ideas and suggestions from the Anaheim community. Your input and participation will help the Advisory Committee, composed of five retired judges, establish the proposed district boundaries. The Advisory Committee will hold a series of public meetings for community members to learn about the process for drawing City Council boundaries and share suggestions. The City Council will ultimately make the final decision. (Visit www.anaheim.net/districts for more information.)

Who are the Advisory Committee Members?

The committee is composed of five retired Orange County Superior Court judges: Edward J. Wallin (Chair), Stephen J. Sundvold (Vice Chair), James Jackman, Nancy Wieben Stock and Thomas Neal Thrasher.

Why Should I Attend a Meeting?

It's your opportunity to participate, define your community and be heard. You will have the chance to submit your own map with suggestions for the district boundaries that will help shape Anaheim's future.
